

FIRE

Foundation for Individual
Rights and Expression

October 31, 2023

Amanuel Gebru
Office of the President
Los Angeles City College
855 North Vermont Avenue
Los Angeles, California 90029

Sent via U.S. Mail and Electronic Mail (GebruA@laccd.edu)

Dear President Gebru:

FIRE's Student Press Freedom Initiative appreciates Los Angeles City College's quick reply to our September 18 letter expressing concern over the state of press freedom at the college in light of the proposed unconstitutional media policy and given administrators' prior mistreatment of student journalists. It is difficult to take comfort, however, in the college's promise that LACC aims to "ensure . . . students have every right to cover events/news on our campus" when college leaders' recent actions perpetuate a hostile environment for student journalists.

Specifically, FIRE and the Student Press Law Center recently received reports and documentation indicating that the Los Angeles Community College District (LACCD) IT department and LACC refused to publish the latest issues of The Collegian on the college's website,<sup>1</sup> despite a long history of providing website space for the paper.<sup>2</sup> This raises new viewpoint discrimination concerns insofar as one of the issues included articles critical of college leadership, and while the college cited "accessibility issues" to support its decision, it offered no suggestions how the paper might improve accessibility for students with disabilities. Instead, it flatly refused to publish, creating a different kind of accessibility issue—one that denies online Collegian access to every single member of LACC's community.<sup>3</sup>

---

<sup>1</sup> News, LOS ANGELES CITY COLL., <https://www.lacitycollege.edu/news> [<https://perma.cc/GCE7-WWQ3>]. This recitation reflects our understanding of the pertinent facts. We appreciate that you may have more information and invite you to share it with us.

<sup>2</sup> Email from Shaena Engle to Rhonda Guess (Oct. 2, 2023, 10:33 AM) (on file with the author).

<sup>3</sup> The Sept. 20 issue marks the first time administrators have refused to publish the paper online for accessibility issues. When run through an accessibility check on Adobe Acrobat Pro, previous Collegian issues, such as Vol. 191, Issue 5 from May 2023 (on file with the author), appear to present similar errors as the Sept. 20 issue but remain on the college website.

Under the First Amendment, by providing space for The Collegian's issues on its website, LACC opened a limited purpose public forum and cannot subsequently "redefine its scope in response to speech it disfavors."<sup>4</sup> LACC may modify this forum in ways that are "reasonable and viewpoint neutral,"<sup>5</sup> but the college and district exceeded those bounds if they refused to publish issues of the paper due to objections to its content.

Student journalists at The Collegian must be free to write about what they please—including describing their frustrations with the college's administrators,<sup>6</sup> providing an unedited transcript of an interview with its new president,<sup>7</sup> or discussing the state of free speech at campus<sup>8</sup>—without fear the college will refuse to recognize the paper's rights at any sign of bad publicity.

Given that administrators never raised any web-accessibility concerns until recently being criticized by the paper, Collegian editors remain understandably concerned this excuse is pretextual.<sup>9</sup> The First Amendment, which we remind you binds LACC and the district,<sup>10</sup> leaves no place for prior review and restraint of student press. This holds true regardless of the motivation for such actions. LACC and the district may provide constructive criticism post-publication to assist the educational process. However, the censorial practices of prior review and restraint and the implied need for a paper's contents to meet official approval are wholly at odds with a free student press.<sup>11</sup>

---

<sup>4</sup> Koala v. Khosla, 931 F.3d 887, 903 (9th Cir. 2019).

<sup>5</sup> Id. at 900.

<sup>6</sup> Juan Mendoza, Proposed Media Rules Retaliate Against Student Journalists, COLLEGIAN, Vol. 192, Issue 1 (Sept. 20, 2023) (on file with the author).

<sup>7</sup> Thandi Chimurenga, President Chats with Collegian in Unfiltered Interview, COLLEGIAN, Vol. 192, Issue 1 (Sept. 20, 2023) (on file with the author).

<sup>8</sup> Alondra Lemus, What Does Free Speech Mean?, COLLEGIAN, Vol. 192, Issue 1 (Sept. 20, 2023) (on file with the author).

<sup>9</sup> We note when FIRE conducted an accessibility check through Adobe Acrobat, the Sept. 20 issue of The Collegian raised 20 issues, the same number of issues raised by the PDF of LACC's 2023-2024 College Catalogue currently available on the college's website (and on file with the author). The currently available version of the college's Fall 2023 course schedule (also on file with the author) raised 21 issues as well. The fact that these other materials—which, unlike The Collegian, are within the institution's control—appear to also raise accessibility issues, the differential treatment of The Collegian for the same asserted flaws is troubling.

<sup>10</sup> California law furthermore binds LACC, barring community colleges from implementing regulations that restrict students from exercising their expressive rights. Cal. Educ. Code § 76120.

<sup>11</sup> The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, whose decisions bind LACC, has held it unconstitutional for school administrators to subject an independent student publication to prior review as a condition for distribution. Burch v. Barker, 861 F.2d 1149, 1159 (9th Cir. 1988); see also Lovell v. Griffin, 303 U.S. 444, 451 (1938) (invalidating ordinance requiring city manager review of literature before distribution). Even were such review limited to accessibility concerns and any required changes kept purely corrective, the requirement to submit to review is still constitutionally infirm as content-based regulation of speech. See, e.g., Reed v. Town of Gilbert, 576 U.S. 155, 156 (2015) (any restriction which necessitates reference to the speech itself is content-based).

We also take this opportunity to observe that FIRE has learned the press access issues detailed in our previous letters persist, as an administrator attempted to force a student leave a public outdoor space where she was taking pictures on assignment, on the asserted ground that her photography made others “uncomfortable.” These actions renew FIRE’s demand that LACC must leave student journalists free to gather news without interference, as articulated in our first two letters (copies enclosed), and as required by the First Amendment.

We request a substantive response to the ongoing concerns described in this letter no later than the close of business November 13, confirming that LACC will publish issues of The Collegian on its website and addressing our previous concerns regarding student press access and the proposed policy affecting it.

Sincerely,

Anne Marie Tamburro
Program Officer, Campus Rights Advocacy
Foundation for Individual Rights and Expression

Mike Hiestand
Senior Legal Counsel
Student Press Law Center

Encl.

FIRE

Foundation for Individual
Rights and Expression

June 1, 2023

Mary Gallagher
Office of the President
Los Angeles City College
855 North Vermont Avenue
Los Angeles, California 90029

Sent via U.S. Mail and Electronic Mail (gallagmp@lacitycollege.edu)

Dear President Gallagher:

The Student Press Freedom Initiative at the Foundation for Individual Rights and Expression (FIRE), a nonpartisan nonprofit dedicated to defending freedom of speech,<sup>1</sup> is concerned by Los Angeles City College's treatment of student journalists from The Collegian and the paper's adviser. Interfering with student press rights and potentially investigating the paper's adviser for defending the journalism program and The Collegian violates LACC's First Amendment obligations.

Our concerns arise from student journalist Juan Mendoza's May 2, 2023 attendance at a concert in the Herb Alpert Music Hall to photograph and cover the event for The Collegian.<sup>2</sup> While Mendoza prepared his camera, Christine Park, chair of LACC's Department of Music, confronted him and, though LACC advertised the concert as "free and open to the public,"<sup>3</sup> said "What are you doing here? You are not allowed. No cameras are permitted. This is a private event."<sup>4</sup> When Mendoza explained that he was a student journalist from The Collegian, Park responded that she didn't care and ordered him to leave. She did not give Mendoza the opportunity to put his camera away and stay without photographing the event.

Our concerns are further driven by Collegian reporter Louis White's May 19 visit to LACC's music building to photograph the space while on assignment for the paper. Prior to taking

---

<sup>1</sup> For more than 20 years, FIRE has defended freedom of expression, conscience, and religion, and other individual rights on America's college campuses. You can learn more about our recently expanded mission and activities at thefire.org.

<sup>2</sup> Michelle McCree, Music Chair Out of Tune With Free Speech, COLLEGIAN (May 10, 2023), https://www.lacitycollege.edu/sites/lacc.edu/files/2023-05/Collegian\_spring\_2023\_Issue4.pdf.

<sup>3</sup> Herb Alpert Music Center: Faculty & Staff Concert in Honor of Dr. Mary Gallagher, LOS ANGELES CITY COLL., <https://www.lacitycollege.edu/campus-life/events/2023/5/2/herb-alpert-music-center-faculty-staff-concert-honor-dr-mary-gallagher> [<https://perma.cc/JE3S-8QA2>].

<sup>4</sup> McCree, supra note 2.

photos, White contacted the LACC Sheriff's Office to confirm the music building is open to the public. Nonetheless, building staff, claiming to feel "unsafe and threatened," reported White, resulting in three sheriffs' deputies attempting to eject him from the premises, even though he was photographing only its common areas open to the public.

These recent events are emblematic of a pattern of LACC mistreating student journalists. In 2021, LACC Athletic Director Rob McKinley ejected Collegian journalists from the locker room while they gathered material for a story, citing privacy concerns. Later, McKinley banned reporters from accessing the public soccer field.<sup>5</sup> When asked by a Collegian reporter to explain, McKinley said he "[doesn't] like [the journalist]" and questioned the content of prior Collegian stories about the soccer team.<sup>6</sup> In 2015, Park expelled a student journalist from a different music department event.<sup>7</sup> And in 2009, LACC's hostility toward The Collegian's reporting and staff led it to cut 40% of the paper's funding.<sup>8</sup> This history understandably fuels concerns from Collegian staff members and adviser Rhonda Guess that administrators have unconstitutionally restricted Collegian reporters' access to spaces on LACC's campus in retaliation for the paper's content.

Guess fears she may now face retaliation herself. Last November, Guess emailed you and the LACC academic vice president alleging the dean "attacked" the journalism program in her program review. Neither you nor the academic vice president responded until last week, when you asked Guess to meet on May 30 to discuss the emails and a particular issue of The Collegian. This meeting has since been rescheduled for June 5. You have not specified additional details about what the meeting will entail or if it is investigatory in nature. It is notable that this meeting to address months-old criticism comes amidst tensions between LACC administrators and The Collegian, during which time Guess has publicly supported the paper and criticized the college.<sup>9</sup>

---

<sup>5</sup> Melissa Gomez, At L.A. City College, student reporters decry censorship at public, on-campus events, L.A. TIMES (May 24, 2022, 5:00 AM), <https://www.latimes.com/california/story/2023-05-24/1-a-city-college-student-journalists-face-censorship>.

<sup>6</sup> Id.

<sup>7</sup> Id.

<sup>8</sup> Adam Kissel, FIRE and Student Press Law Center Address Threats to Freedom of the Press at Los Angeles City College, FIRE (Jan. 18, 2010) <https://www.thefire.org/news/fire-and-student-press-law-center-address-threats-freedom-press-los-angeles-city-college>.

<sup>9</sup> Gomez, supra note 5.

When a public college like LACC appears to take retaliatory action against the student press<sup>10</sup> and faculty advisers,<sup>11</sup> it violates its binding First Amendment obligations.<sup>12</sup> The question is not whether formal punishment is meted out, but whether the institution’s actions in response to protected First Amendment activity “would chill or silence a person of ordinary firmness from future First Amendment activities.”<sup>13</sup> Likewise, the Supreme Court has made clear that “singl[ing] out” journalists for disparate treatment violates fundamental principles of freedom of expression.<sup>14</sup> The Court has observed that journalists must have access to public proceedings to play their vital role of facilitating government transparency by allowing for informed public discussion of government affairs.<sup>15</sup> Student journalists at The Collegian facilitate institutional transparency and informed community discussion of campus events.

The Supreme Court’s ruling in Globe Newspaper Co. v. Superior Ct. is instructive. There, the Court held journalists may be denied access to spaces traditionally open to the public only if the denial is “necessitated” by a “compelling” interest and is “narrowly tailored to serve that interest.”<sup>16</sup> LACC cannot articulate a compelling interest in each situation where administrators barred or attempted to remove student journalists from a space. When asking Mendoza to leave the concert, Park justified this order by stating the event was private, but advertisements of the event noting it was open to the public make Park’s privacy assertion clearly incorrect.<sup>17</sup> Even if LACC had a valid privacy interest in prohibiting Mendoza from photographing the concert—which it did not, as the event was public<sup>18</sup>—forcing him to leave entirely instead of asking him to put his camera away is not tailored to serve that interest.

Similarly, college employees sought to justify attempting to remove White from the music building in part by claiming the building was private. This is not true, considering it is open to LACC students and faculty. The staff’s other interest in removing White—that he allegedly made them feel “unsafe and threatened”—is meritless as well. While campus safety is

---

<sup>10</sup> See e.g. Papish v. Bd. of Curators of the Univ. of Mo., 410 U.S. 667, 667–68 (1973) (public universities cannot punish students journalists solely because they published offensive or indecent speech); Stanley v. Magrath, 719 F.2d 279, 282 (8th Cir. 1983) (public universities cannot alter a student paper’s funding mechanism in reaction to objections to the paper’s content); Rosenberger v. Rector & Visitors of the Univ. of Va., 515 U.S. 819, 829–30 (1995) (public universities cannot deny funds to a student paper based on the paper’s viewpoint); Glik v. Cuniff, 655 F.3d 78, 79 (1st Cir. 2011) (journalists’ right to openly record law enforcement, including campus police, in public spaces, is well-established and they cannot be punished for exercising it).

<sup>11</sup> Dambrot v. Central Mich. Univ., 55 F.3d 1177 (6th Cir. 1995).

<sup>12</sup> Healy v. James, 408 U.S. 169, 180 (1972) (“[T]he precedents of this Court leave no room for the view that, because of the acknowledged need for order, First Amendment protections should apply with less force on college campuses than in the community at large. Quite to the contrary, ‘the vigilant protection of constitutional freedoms is nowhere more vital than in the community of American schools.’”) (internal citation omitted).

<sup>13</sup> Mendocino Envtl. Ctr. v. Mendocino Cty., 192 F.3d 1283, 1300 (9th Cir. 1999).

<sup>14</sup> Minneapolis Star & Tribune Co. v. Minn. Comm’r of Revenue, 460 U.S. 575, 582 (1983).

<sup>15</sup> Globe Newspaper Co. v. Superior Ct., 457 U.S. 596, 606–07 (1982).

<sup>16</sup> Id.

<sup>17</sup> Herb Alpert Music Center: Faculty & Staff Concert in Honor of Dr. Mary Gallagher, LOS ANGELES CITY COLL., <https://www.lacitycollege.edu/campus-life/events/2023/5/2/herb-alpert-music-center-faculty-staff-concert-honor-dr-mary-gallagher> [https://perma.cc/JE3S-8QA2].

<sup>18</sup> Id.

ordinarily a strong interest of the college, a student entering a public building on campus for reporting purposes poses no threat. This justification falls far short of compelling basis to remove him from a public space while engaged in protected journalistic activity. And while the music building staff members did not substantiate the claim that they felt unsafe and threatened by White's presence, making White leave the building after he obviated any fear that his presence posed a threat would not be narrowly tailored to serve even valid safety interests.

With respect to The Collegian's advisor, while Guess has limited details about the nature of the meeting to which she was summoned, its context and timing suggests a retaliatory investigation of her speech. Such action would violate the expressive rights LACC is bound to uphold not only by the Constitution, but by California's Leonard Law, which prohibits public California colleges from retaliating against their employees for protecting students engaged in constitutionally protected expression, including student press activities.<sup>19</sup>

Censoring the student press has implications far beyond the newsroom, depriving the entire campus community and members of the public crucial campus-related information and, ultimately, weakening transparency and trust in institutions of higher education. A corollary of the right to free speech is the public's right to know, and student media is an important conduit for this right to know about what happens on America's college campuses. Courts have recognized that the media, whether on or off campus, act as "surrogates for the public" in keeping a watchful eye on the operations of government actors, including those on public campuses, and restraining institutional abuses of power.<sup>20</sup>

LACC's fraught history with The Collegian and recent violations of the rights of its staff and potentially its advisor cast doubt upon the college's transparency on decisions and events that affect its entire community. The unique role of colleges as "peculiarly the 'marketplace of ideas'"<sup>21</sup> cannot be squared with burdens on the rights of student journalists and faculty.

Given the urgent nature of this matter, we request a substantive response to this letter no later than the close of business on Monday, June 5, 2023, confirming that LACC will reassure student journalists and faculty that they are free to exercise their expressive rights without unlawful interference from college officials, and dropping any improper investigation of Guess, to the extent one is ongoing.

Sincerely,

Anne Marie Tamburro
Program Officer, Campus Rights Advocacy

Cc: Francisco C. Rodríguez, PhD., Chancellor, Los Angeles Community College District
David Vela, President, Board of Trustees, Los Angeles Community College District

<sup>19</sup> Calif. Educ. Code § 66301(f).

<sup>20</sup> Richmond Newspapers v. Virginia, 448 U.S. 555, 573 (1980).

<sup>21</sup> Keyishian v. Bd. of Regents of Univ. of State of N.Y., 385 U.S. 589, 603 (1967).

FIRE

Foundation for Individual
Rights and Expression

September 18, 2023

Amanuel Gebru
Office of the President
Los Angeles City College
855 North Vermont Avenue
Los Angeles, California 90029

Sent via U.S. Mail and Electronic Mail (GebruA@laccd.edu)

Dear President Gebru:

The Foundation for Individual Rights and Expression (FIRE), a nonpartisan nonprofit dedicated to defending freedom of speech,<sup>1</sup> writes to welcome you to your new role as president of Los Angeles City College. We also write to share concerns about the state of the student press at LACC after learning that college administrators have interfered with student journalists' ability to freely gather news on campus. This interference, whether conducted in practice or codified in LACC policy, violates the First Amendment rights of the student press.

As you may know, earlier this year LACC administrators faced allegations of demonstrating a pattern of disrespect towards student journalists' right to gather news at LACC facilities.<sup>2</sup> On two separate occasions, administrators removed student journalists from campus buildings while the journalists were taking photographs on assignment for The Collegian, LACC's student paper.<sup>3</sup> Student journalists allege similar mistreatment from administrators dating to 2015.<sup>4</sup> FIRE wrote then-president Mary Gallagher on June 1, asking her to reassure student

---

<sup>1</sup> For more than 20 years, FIRE has defended freedom of expression, conscience, and religion, and other individual rights on America's college campuses. You can learn more about our recently expanded mission and activities at thefire.org.

<sup>2</sup> The following description reflects our understanding of the pertinent facts. We appreciate that you may have additional information to offer and invite you to share it with us. See, e.g., Michelle McCree, Music Chair Out of Tune With Free Speech, COLLEGIAN (May 10, 2023), https://www.lacitycollege.edu/sites/lacc.edu/files/2023-05/Collegian\_spring\_2023\_Issue4.pdf; Melissa Gomez, At L.A. City College, student reporters decry censorship at public, on-campus events, L.A. TIMES (May 24, 2023, 5:00 AM), <https://www.latimes.com/california/story/2023-05-24/l-a-city-college-student-journalists-face-censorship>.

<sup>3</sup> Gomez, supra note 2.

<sup>4</sup> Id.

journalists that LACC would honor their expressive rights.<sup>5</sup> Gallagher did not respond to FIRE's letter before leaving office.

On August 8, Collegian adviser Rhonda Guess notified FIRE of a proposed policy dictating campus filming and photography requirements applying to all members of the media, including student journalists and "anyone who takes actions to broadcast . . . to a wider audience, including posting on social media."<sup>6</sup> The draft policy, authored by LACC Public Relations Manager Shaena Engle, states in part that:<sup>7</sup>

Filming and photographing for public consumption of any kind anywhere within LACC and events on the LACC campus is allowed at the discretion of LACC's Media Relations Department. Most filming and photography require advance permission. LACC reserves the right to refuse or revoke permission to film or photograph for any reason . . . Filming, interviews and photography of students, alumni and attendees of events require a photography and video release and agreement from parties being filmed, interviewed or photographed.

The policy also prohibits:

- Filming and photography on campus for commercial purposes other than for campus marketing.
- Any filming or photography in areas marked with signs indicating no photography or filming.
- Filming and photography on campus about subjects not directly related to LACC.
- Filming and photography outside of normal business hours, Monday – Friday, 8am to 5pm, and when offices are closed.
- Filming in libraries, classrooms and laboratories without prior permission from LACC Media Relations.<sup>8</sup>

These overly restrictive requirements violate LACC's constitutional duty as a public institution to protect students' expressive and free press rights.<sup>9</sup> The right of the press to gather information is well-established and includes the right to publish lawfully obtained information, including videos or photography in circumstances which there is no reasonable

---

<sup>5</sup> We have enclosed a copy of this letter for your convenience.

<sup>6</sup> Shaena Engle, Media Guidelines for Press DRAFT DRAFT DRAFT (August 2023) (on file with the author).

<sup>7</sup> Id.

<sup>8</sup> Id.

<sup>9</sup> Healy v. James, 408 U.S. 169, 180 (1972) ("[T]he precedents of this Court leave no room for the view that, because of the acknowledged need for order, First Amendment protections should apply with less force on college campuses than in the community at large. Quite to the contrary, 'the vigilant protection of constitutional freedoms is nowhere more vital than in the community of American schools.'" (internal citation omitted)).

expectation of privacy.<sup>10</sup> The First Amendment not only protects the spoken and written word but also encompasses “the right to photograph and record matters of public interest,”<sup>11</sup> including on public property (like many areas of LACC’s campus) and/or the actions of public officials (like LACC administrators).<sup>12</sup>

The proposed media policy violates this right by requiring college officials’ pre-approval for virtually all photography and filming on campus. Courts have criticized this kind of prior review—which carries the potential of prior restraint on the student media, where the government can prevent expression before it happens—as the “most serious and least tolerable infringement” of free speech.<sup>13</sup> Such restrictions on expressive rights are justifiable only in the most extenuating circumstances, such as a demonstrated threat to national security.<sup>14</sup>

To function as an independent newspaper, The Collegian must be able to make editorial decisions, including when and how to gather information, without outside oversight. A policy requiring Collegian reporters—and, broadly speaking, citizen journalists—to submit to Engle essentially all plans to film or photograph on campus hampers a student reporter’s ability to quickly and efficiently use one of the traditional information-gathering tools in a journalist’s toolbox.<sup>15</sup> In addition to burdening student speech, this prior review also burdens student press rights by inserting the LACC administration directly into The Collegian’s editorial process.

The proposed policy also impermissibly risks prior restraint by inherently granting administrators—namely, Engle alone—the authority to grant or deny student journalists permission to photograph or film on campus. As the administrator overseeing these requests, Engle can invoke this policy to limit coverage critical of the college. While LACC may have some legitimate privacy-related reasons for limiting photography or filming in certain campus spaces where students, faculty, or staff have expectations of privacy, it cannot justify the blanket restrictions proposed.

<sup>10</sup> See, e.g., Branzburg v. Hayes, 408 U.S. 665, 681 (1972).

<sup>11</sup> Askins v. U.S. Dep’t of Homeland Sec., 899 F.3d 1035, 1044 (9th Cir. 2018); see also Animal Legal Def. Fund v. Wasden, 878 F.3d 1184, 1203 (9th Cir. 2018) (“We easily dispose of [the] claim that the act of creating an audiovisual recording is not speech protected by the First Amendment. This argument is akin to saying that even though a book is protected by the First Amendment, the process of writing the book is not. Audiovisual recordings are protected by the First Amendment as recognized “organ[s] of public opinion” and as a “significant medium for the communication of ideas.” (internal citation omitted)).

<sup>12</sup> Askins, 899 F.3d at 1044.

<sup>13</sup> Nebraska Press Ass’n v. Stuart, 427 U.S. 539, 559 (1976); see also Burch v. Barker, 861 F.2d 1149, 1159 (9th Cir. 1988); Watchtower Bible & Tract Soc’y of N.Y., Inc. v. Vill. of Stratton, 536 U.S. 150, 165–66 (2002) (“It is offensive—not only to the values protected by the First Amendment, but to the very notion of a free society—that in the context of everyday public discourse a citizen must first inform the government of her desire to speak to her neighbors and then obtain a permit to do so.”); N.Y. Times Co. v. United States, 403 U.S. 713, 714 (1971) (per curiam) (“Any system of prior restraints of expression comes to this Court bearing a heavy presumption against its constitutional validity.”) (cleaned up); Lovell v. Griffin, 303 U.S. 444, 451 (1938) (striking down an ordinance requiring city manager review of literature before distribution).

<sup>14</sup> See N.Y. Times Co., 403 U.S. at 714; Near v. Minnesota, 283 U.S. 697 (1931).

<sup>15</sup> Note that, under the policy’s definition, restrictive activity could include a student simply video-calling friends.

As you begin your tenure as LACC president, FIRE urges you to evaluate the college's troubling history with the student press and to pledge not to repeat these missteps moving forward. We request a substantive response to this letter no later than the close of business on October 2, 2023, affirming that LACC will respect the rights of the student press and decline to move forward with the proposed policy. We would be happy to discuss ways the college can fulfill its First Amendment obligations while advancing its other important goals.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads "Anne Marie Tamburro".

Anne Marie Tamburro
Program Officer, Campus Rights Advocacy

Cc: Shaena Engle, Public Relations Manager

Encl.

FIRE

Foundation for Individual
Rights and Expression

June 1, 2023

Mary Gallagher
Office of the President
Los Angeles City College
855 North Vermont Avenue
Los Angeles, California 90029

Sent via U.S. Mail and Electronic Mail (gallagmp@lacitycollege.edu)

Dear President Gallagher:

The Student Press Freedom Initiative at the Foundation for Individual Rights and Expression (FIRE), a nonpartisan nonprofit dedicated to defending freedom of speech,<sup>1</sup> is concerned by Los Angeles City College's treatment of student journalists from The Collegian and the paper's adviser. Interfering with student press rights and potentially investigating the paper's adviser for defending the journalism program and The Collegian violates LACC's First Amendment obligations.

Our concerns arise from student journalist Juan Mendoza's May 2, 2023 attendance at a concert in the Herb Alpert Music Hall to photograph and cover the event for The Collegian.<sup>2</sup> While Mendoza prepared his camera, Christine Park, chair of LACC's Department of Music, confronted him and, though LACC advertised the concert as "free and open to the public,"<sup>3</sup> said "What are you doing here? You are not allowed. No cameras are permitted. This is a private event."<sup>4</sup> When Mendoza explained that he was a student journalist from The Collegian, Park responded that she didn't care and ordered him to leave. She did not give Mendoza the opportunity to put his camera away and stay without photographing the event.

Our concerns are further driven by Collegian reporter Louis White's May 19 visit to LACC's music building to photograph the space while on assignment for the paper. Prior to taking

---

<sup>1</sup> For more than 20 years, FIRE has defended freedom of expression, conscience, and religion, and other individual rights on America's college campuses. You can learn more about our recently expanded mission and activities at thefire.org.

<sup>2</sup> Michelle McCree, Music Chair Out of Tune With Free Speech, COLLEGIAN (May 10, 2023), https://www.lacitycollege.edu/sites/lacc.edu/files/2023-05/Collegian\_spring\_2023\_Issue4.pdf.

<sup>3</sup> Herb Alpert Music Center: Faculty & Staff Concert in Honor of Dr. Mary Gallagher, LOS ANGELES CITY COLL., <https://www.lacitycollege.edu/campus-life/events/2023/5/2/herb-alpert-music-center-faculty-staff-concert-honor-dr-mary-gallagher> [<https://perma.cc/JE3S-8QA2>].

<sup>4</sup> McCree, supra note 2.

photos, White contacted the LACC Sheriff's Office to confirm the music building is open to the public. Nonetheless, building staff, claiming to feel "unsafe and threatened," reported White, resulting in three sheriffs' deputies attempting to eject him from the premises, even though he was photographing only its common areas open to the public.

These recent events are emblematic of a pattern of LACC mistreating student journalists. In 2021, LACC Athletic Director Rob McKinley ejected Collegian journalists from the locker room while they gathered material for a story, citing privacy concerns. Later, McKinley banned reporters from accessing the public soccer field.<sup>5</sup> When asked by a Collegian reporter to explain, McKinley said he "[doesn't] like [the journalist]" and questioned the content of prior Collegian stories about the soccer team.<sup>6</sup> In 2015, Park expelled a student journalist from a different music department event.<sup>7</sup> And in 2009, LACC's hostility toward The Collegian's reporting and staff led it to cut 40% of the paper's funding.<sup>8</sup> This history understandably fuels concerns from Collegian staff members and adviser Rhonda Guess that administrators have unconstitutionally restricted Collegian reporters' access to spaces on LACC's campus in retaliation for the paper's content.

Guess fears she may now face retaliation herself. Last November, Guess emailed you and the LACC academic vice president alleging the dean "attacked" the journalism program in her program review. Neither you nor the academic vice president responded until last week, when you asked Guess to meet on May 30 to discuss the emails and a particular issue of The Collegian. This meeting has since been rescheduled for June 5. You have not specified additional details about what the meeting will entail or if it is investigatory in nature. It is notable that this meeting to address months-old criticism comes amidst tensions between LACC administrators and The Collegian, during which time Guess has publicly supported the paper and criticized the college.<sup>9</sup>

---

<sup>5</sup> Melissa Gomez, At L.A. City College, student reporters decry censorship at public, on-campus events, L.A. TIMES (May 24, 2022, 5:00 AM), <https://www.latimes.com/california/story/2023-05-24/1-a-city-college-student-journalists-face-censorship>.

<sup>6</sup> Id.

<sup>7</sup> Id.

<sup>8</sup> Adam Kissel, FIRE and Student Press Law Center Address Threats to Freedom of the Press at Los Angeles City College, FIRE (Jan. 18, 2010) <https://www.thefire.org/news/fire-and-student-press-law-center-address-threats-freedom-press-los-angeles-city-college>.

<sup>9</sup> Gomez, supra note 5.

When a public college like LACC appears to take retaliatory action against the student press<sup>10</sup> and faculty advisers,<sup>11</sup> it violates its binding First Amendment obligations.<sup>12</sup> The question is not whether formal punishment is meted out, but whether the institution’s actions in response to protected First Amendment activity “would chill or silence a person of ordinary firmness from future First Amendment activities.”<sup>13</sup> Likewise, the Supreme Court has made clear that “singl[ing] out” journalists for disparate treatment violates fundamental principles of freedom of expression.<sup>14</sup> The Court has observed that journalists must have access to public proceedings to play their vital role of facilitating government transparency by allowing for informed public discussion of government affairs.<sup>15</sup> Student journalists at The Collegian facilitate institutional transparency and informed community discussion of campus events.

The Supreme Court’s ruling in Globe Newspaper Co. v. Superior Ct. is instructive. There, the Court held journalists may be denied access to spaces traditionally open to the public only if the denial is “necessitated” by a “compelling” interest and is “narrowly tailored to serve that interest.”<sup>16</sup> LACC cannot articulate a compelling interest in each situation where administrators barred or attempted to remove student journalists from a space. When asking Mendoza to leave the concert, Park justified this order by stating the event was private, but advertisements of the event noting it was open to the public make Park’s privacy assertion clearly incorrect.<sup>17</sup> Even if LACC had a valid privacy interest in prohibiting Mendoza from photographing the concert—which it did not, as the event was public<sup>18</sup>—forcing him to leave entirely instead of asking him to put his camera away is not tailored to serve that interest.

Similarly, college employees sought to justify attempting to remove White from the music building in part by claiming the building was private. This is not true, considering it is open to LACC students and faculty. The staff’s other interest in removing White—that he allegedly made them feel “unsafe and threatened”—is meritless as well. While campus safety is

---

<sup>10</sup> See e.g. Papish v. Bd. of Curators of the Univ. of Mo., 410 U.S. 667, 667–68 (1973) (public universities cannot punish students journalists solely because they published offensive or indecent speech); Stanley v. Magrath, 719 F.2d 279, 282 (8th Cir. 1983) (public universities cannot alter a student paper’s funding mechanism in reaction to objections to the paper’s content); Rosenberger v. Rector & Visitors of the Univ. of Va., 515 U.S. 819, 829–30 (1995) (public universities cannot deny funds to a student paper based on the paper’s viewpoint); Glik v. Cuniff, 655 F.3d 78, 79 (1st Cir. 2011) (journalists’ right to openly record law enforcement, including campus police, in public spaces, is well-established and they cannot be punished for exercising it).

<sup>11</sup> Dambrot v. Central Mich. Univ., 55 F.3d 1177 (6th Cir. 1995).

<sup>12</sup> Healy v. James, 408 U.S. 169, 180 (1972) (“[T]he precedents of this Court leave no room for the view that, because of the acknowledged need for order, First Amendment protections should apply with less force on college campuses than in the community at large. Quite to the contrary, ‘the vigilant protection of constitutional freedoms is nowhere more vital than in the community of American schools.’”) (internal citation omitted).

<sup>13</sup> Mendocino Envtl. Ctr. v. Mendocino Cty., 192 F.3d 1283, 1300 (9th Cir. 1999).

<sup>14</sup> Minneapolis Star & Tribune Co. v. Minn. Comm’r of Revenue, 460 U.S. 575, 582 (1983).

<sup>15</sup> Globe Newspaper Co. v. Superior Ct., 457 U.S. 596, 606–07 (1982).

<sup>16</sup> Id.

<sup>17</sup> Herb Alpert Music Center: Faculty & Staff Concert in Honor of Dr. Mary Gallagher, LOS ANGELES CITY COLL., <https://www.lacitycollege.edu/campus-life/events/2023/5/2/herb-alpert-music-center-faculty-staff-concert-honor-dr-mary-gallagher> [https://perma.cc/JE3S-8QA2].

<sup>18</sup> Id.

ordinarily a strong interest of the college, a student entering a public building on campus for reporting purposes poses no threat. This justification falls far short of compelling basis to remove him from a public space while engaged in protected journalistic activity. And while the music building staff members did not substantiate the claim that they felt unsafe and threatened by White's presence, making White leave the building after he obviated any fear that his presence posed a threat would not be narrowly tailored to serve even valid safety interests.

With respect to The Collegian's advisor, while Guess has limited details about the nature of the meeting to which she was summoned, its context and timing suggests a retaliatory investigation of her speech. Such action would violate the expressive rights LACC is bound to uphold not only by the Constitution, but by California's Leonard Law, which prohibits public California colleges from retaliating against their employees for protecting students engaged in constitutionally protected expression, including student press activities.<sup>19</sup>

Censoring the student press has implications far beyond the newsroom, depriving the entire campus community and members of the public crucial campus-related information and, ultimately, weakening transparency and trust in institutions of higher education. A corollary of the right to free speech is the public's right to know, and student media is an important conduit for this right to know about what happens on America's college campuses. Courts have recognized that the media, whether on or off campus, act as "surrogates for the public" in keeping a watchful eye on the operations of government actors, including those on public campuses, and restraining institutional abuses of power.<sup>20</sup>

LACC's fraught history with The Collegian and recent violations of the rights of its staff and potentially its advisor cast doubt upon the college's transparency on decisions and events that affect its entire community. The unique role of colleges as "peculiarly the 'marketplace of ideas'"<sup>21</sup> cannot be squared with burdens on the rights of student journalists and faculty.

Given the urgent nature of this matter, we request a substantive response to this letter no later than the close of business on Monday, June 5, 2023, confirming that LACC will reassure student journalists and faculty that they are free to exercise their expressive rights without unlawful interference from college officials, and dropping any improper investigation of Guess, to the extent one is ongoing.

Sincerely,

Anne Marie Tamburro
Program Officer, Campus Rights Advocacy

Cc: Francisco C. Rodríguez, PhD., Chancellor, Los Angeles Community College District
David Vela, President, Board of Trustees, Los Angeles Community College District

---

<sup>19</sup> Calif. Educ. Code § 66301(f).

<sup>20</sup> Richmond Newspapers v. Virginia, 448 U.S. 555, 573 (1980).

<sup>21</sup> Keyishian v. Bd. of Regents of Univ. of State of N.Y., 385 U.S. 589, 603 (1967).